T.C. Williams Senior High School
Alexandria, Virginia

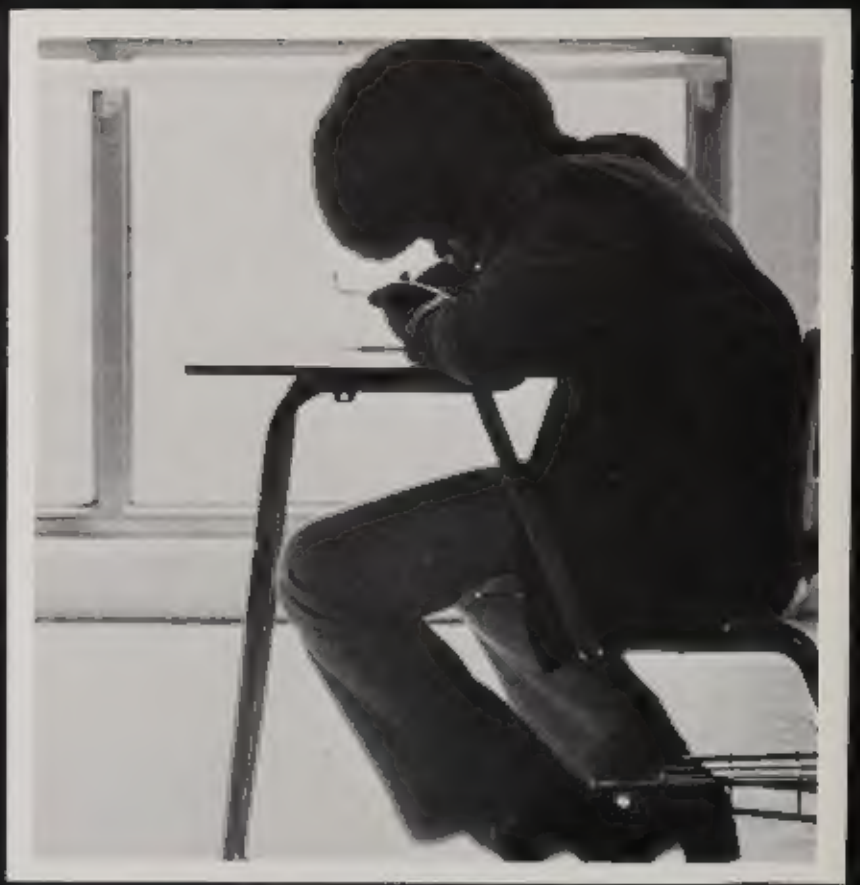

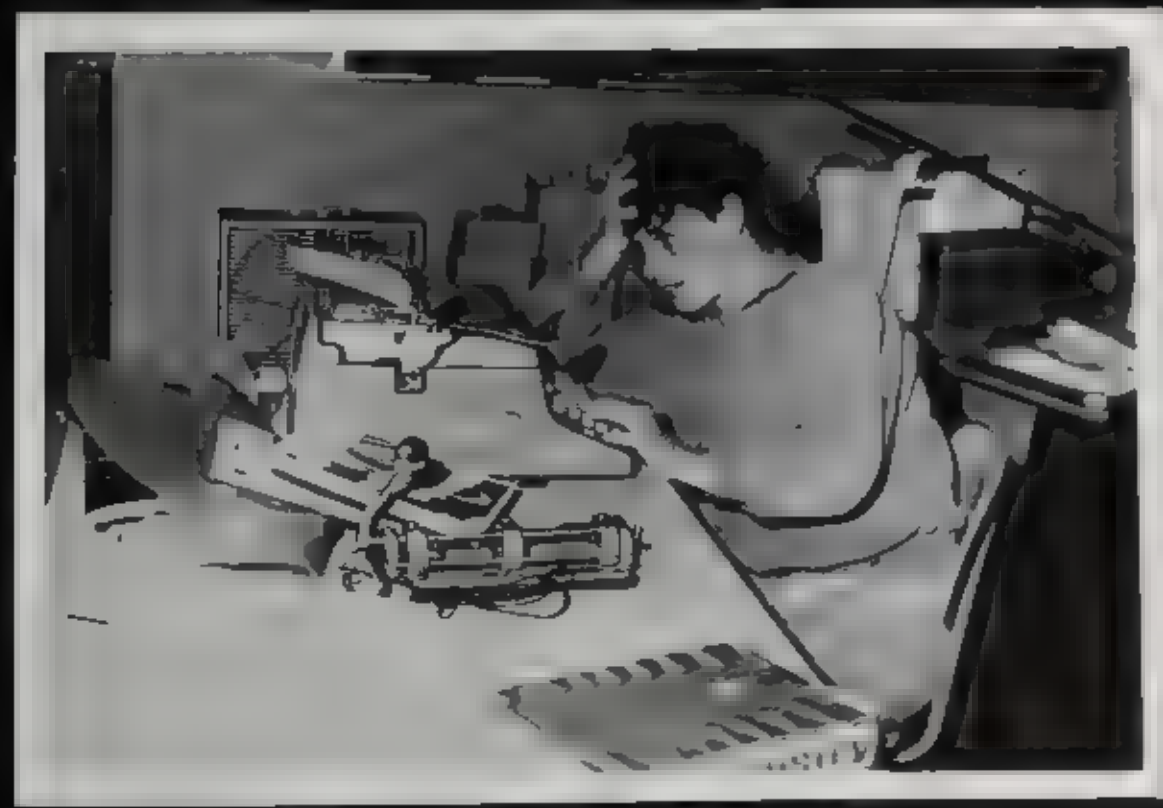

There is a unity among us, because we are all parts of the body of T.C. Williams Senior High, which is unique within the surrounding academic world. This is not to say that we have a tremendous sense of school spirit, because that is not a part of T.C. But we know that our ideas and actions are parts of the single body, and that the body has many parts.

What a strange school we would be if we were all white, or all basketball players, or all National Honor Society members. But we are all different parts, and yet one body. And some of the smallest and least necessary parts are really the most important for our identity. And we are glad to have some parts which seem very strange to other schools. For there is a special place for each part.

In all that our body experiences we know that if one part suffers, all parts suffer with it. Likewise, if one part is honored, all parts share that honor. Yes, all of us together are the body of T.C. Williams Senior High, each one of us a separate and necessary part of the single body.

Like all bodies, ours needs to keep in shape. T.C. Williams is in its best condition when all parts exercise their special talents and abilities. Only when the parts live and work in harmony is the body able to move forward, benefiting all its parts. Let's see how well the parts of the body did this year:

Heart 'n Soul

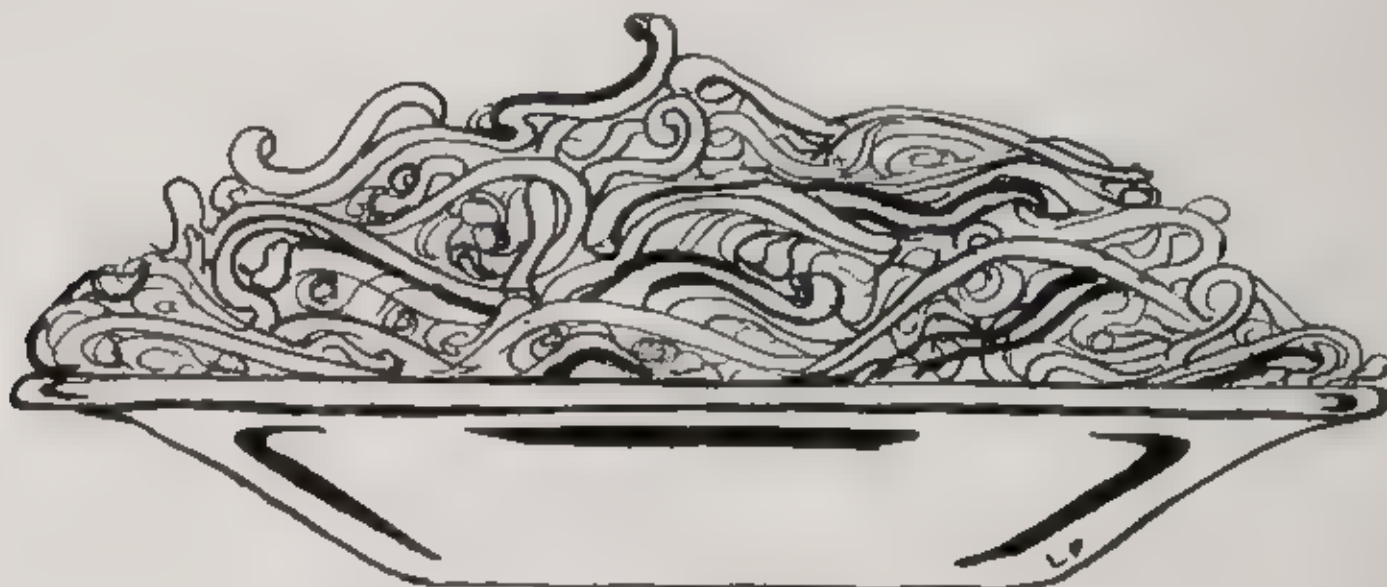

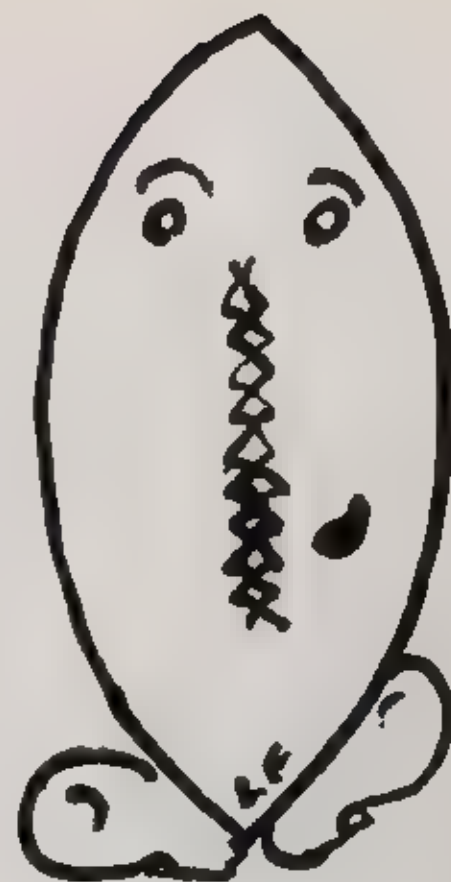

The ideas, feelings, talents, joys, and sorrows shared during 1974 formed the personality of the body, and influenced our lives for the future. Our actions, personalities, knowledge, abilities, spirit, and efforts have all gone into the activities at T.C. Poor attendance at assemblies, gambling in the bathrooms, and smoking everywhere were part of T.C., too, but we've chosen to illustrate the more constructive happenings — the plays, shows, parties, and dances

School Year Starts Early

The 1973-74 school year started quite early for the drill corps and cheerleaders, who practiced weekly during the summer. The SCA was also busy in the summer, making plans for the opening of school, and working on a student handbook. With August came football practice, and, in a few weeks, Band Camp in Bridgewater, Virginia, and Football Camp in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. A lot of grueling practice goes on during the week at both camps, and the amount of progress that is made that week indicates the success of the future football/marching season.

Pasta Pulls-in Profits for PTSA

City Council and School Board members joined teachers, students, parents, and administrators at the PTSA Pasta Party. Parents and Drill Corps members helped man the kitchen and cafeteria line to serve more than 700 people Mrs. Canter's spaghetti. Activities were going on all over the school: wrestling in the gym, drama in the aud., and a fashion show in the cafe. At 8:00 the stage band provided music 'till midnight, and hundreds of people stayed to have a ball. The Pasta Party netted $1100 for TCW's general scholarship fund and $400 for the band

Seniors Float Away with First Prize in Homecoming Parade

Roses for Queen Sharon

Participants in Homecoming activities, from the float-makers and football players to attendants and escorts, found there was almost as much work as enjoyment. After hours and hours of scrounging for float-making material (there's never enough paint, paper, chickenwire, or time) the parade is over in minutes. The SCA took pains to make everything just right: a crown for the queen, the right band for the concert, and the best way to elect attendants

The football game, which turned out to be more of a massacre than a game, was a victory for T.C. At halftime, floats, the marching band, clowns selling pom poms, and the Homecoming queen and court thrilled the fans, but some would have preferred that they "bag the bagpipes."

On Saturday evening there was a concert featuring Brat. The rockin' and rollin' in the aisles, along with the poor attendance, hinted that a dance might have been more successful.

Have Ya Got That Spirit? Yeah Man!

Students found they had a real chore this year in trying to clean up T.C.'s reputation, which was marred during last year's basketball season. Therefore, it was with great pride that they received the Northern Virginia Sportsmanship Trophy, indicating a great degree of success in that chore. The student exchange programs held between competing schools during the week of their competition helped somewhat to alleviate the Fairfax County rumors that T.C. has 5000 students, 99% of which are black. But the rumors did very little harm to T.C., of course, and may even have bolstered a waning Titan Spirit.

After a year or two of absence, the Pep Rally has returned to T.C., and its popularity may grow even stronger in T.C.'s bright future. Contrary to the beliefs of many Northern Virginia residents, T.C. is one school that really has its stuff together.

The student-faculty production was the Moss Hart-George Kaufman comedy The Man Who Came to Dinner. Sheridan Whiteside, celebrity writer, stopped by for dinner at the Stanley home and stayed for weeks with a back injury received on the Stanleys doorstep. Mr. Whiteside sets up shop carrying on with business, trying to prevent his secretary, Maggie Cutler, from marrying a local journalist named Bert Jefferson, and generally creating complete chaos in the Stanley household.

David Smithka and Pam Smith starred in Jerry Beatty's production which included especially hysterical performances by Ronnie Ware and Laurie Hinners.

Students Discover the Pleasures of the Great Out-of-Doors

A very mild winter gave students the chance to enjoy the relatively fresh air much of the year. Whether eating lunch, playing tennis, studying nature, playing frizbe, or, in rare cases, throwing snowballs, students enjoyed many hours outside the school building.

Senior Class Gets Into Nostalgia

At the Senior Class '50's Dance in January, students seemed to recapture not only the dancing and fashions of the Fabulous Fifties, but the mood as well. A large crowd showed up to bop, twist, jitterbug, and bunny-hop to '50's (and '60's) music as played by the ever-popular Stage Band and two smaller combos. Highlights of the evening were the performances by Pam Smith, Jan Chevalier, Debbie Graham, and the one by "Elvis the Pelvis." Because it was such a pleasurable, profitable evening, the class may sponsor another "sock hop" later in the year.

Halloween was the date of the Boogie Bash, sponsored by the Senior Class. Not quite as popular, but just as much fun for the students who came in costume.

Key Club Dons Formal Attire to Squeeze Past Keyettes

Finally the Keyettes and Key club meet! After earlier discussion of a wrestling match, Mrs. Moore, acting as referee, was delighted by the decision to play volleyball instead. The Key club entered in their "shorts 'n ties" while the Keyettes were really zonked out. Despite many predictions, the game was not a run-away. The Keyettes held their ground at first, but the Key Club proved victorious.

DECA, WEAM Teams Hold Shoot-out For Charity

Early in December, the DECA Club sponsored a basketball double-header for the benefit of disadvantaged children in Alexandria. In the first game, the faculty defeated the Alexandria Police Department, and in the featured game the WEAM Disc-Jockeys defeated the DECA Club. The profits were used to give a party and presents to fifty disadvantaged children at Christmas.

Winter Concerts Find All in "a'chord"

Mr. Dahlinger, Jennie Modlin, Patsy Johns and Jimmy Doon

Some of the music directors employed gimmicks to draw crowds to their concerts, and they were very successful. The Pops Concert in December included the stage band, a birthday cake, a belly dance by Nancy Ross, and the presentation of the Dead Fish Award to Mr. Dahlinger. The combined orchestra-chorus concert featured such favorites as "March Past of the Kitchen Utensils" and "Midnight Cowboy." A solo by Jennie Modlin on clarinet and an original composition by Don Provan for a quartet of trombones were features of the band's winter concert.

Fourteen seniors participated in T.C.'s first winter graduation exercises this January. There were four speakers at the ceremony; Ms. Crouch and Mr. Codrea, the teachers who made it possible for the seniors to graduate early by offering one-semester block courses in English and Government. Mr. Hanley, and Ray Watts, a graduating student. This departure from the conventional June graduation allows students more flexibility for their future and a head start in the job market.

If a student bought only 1 of each item sold at TC he'd probably spend over $100 in a year. There are four main categories of sales: Food (candy canes, tootsie rolls, baked goods), Tickets (athletic, raffle, play, concert), Messages (tel-egg-rams, seasonal greetings, sweetie-grams), and Publications (Cerberus, Labyrinth). With all the experience offered here, TC should produce a number of giants of the business world in years to come.

Streaking, the act of running around without any clothes on, was a major discussion topic throughout March and April. Streakers appeared first on college campuses, but by mid-April TC had been struck by early streakers. Found that the library aroused their streak-fever, but the Cabaret rehearsals in late April were even more popular with the streakers. Students had about a hundred different reactions to streaking. Some described it as healthful, some as silly, and some as just plain "fun".

Colleges Take Their Pick from TC's Best

March 29, 1974

Dear

With Spring so near, we received so many applications, we regret to inform you that it is not possible to accept your application at this time.

Large or small, in-state or out-of-state, private or state, urban or rural, technical or liberal arts, segregated or coed: these are among the many choices students have to make when choosing colleges. The Guidance Department offers advice in the form of posters along the halls, catalogs in the office, and occasionally, visiting college representatives. Students keep wishing they could go to the college of their choice.

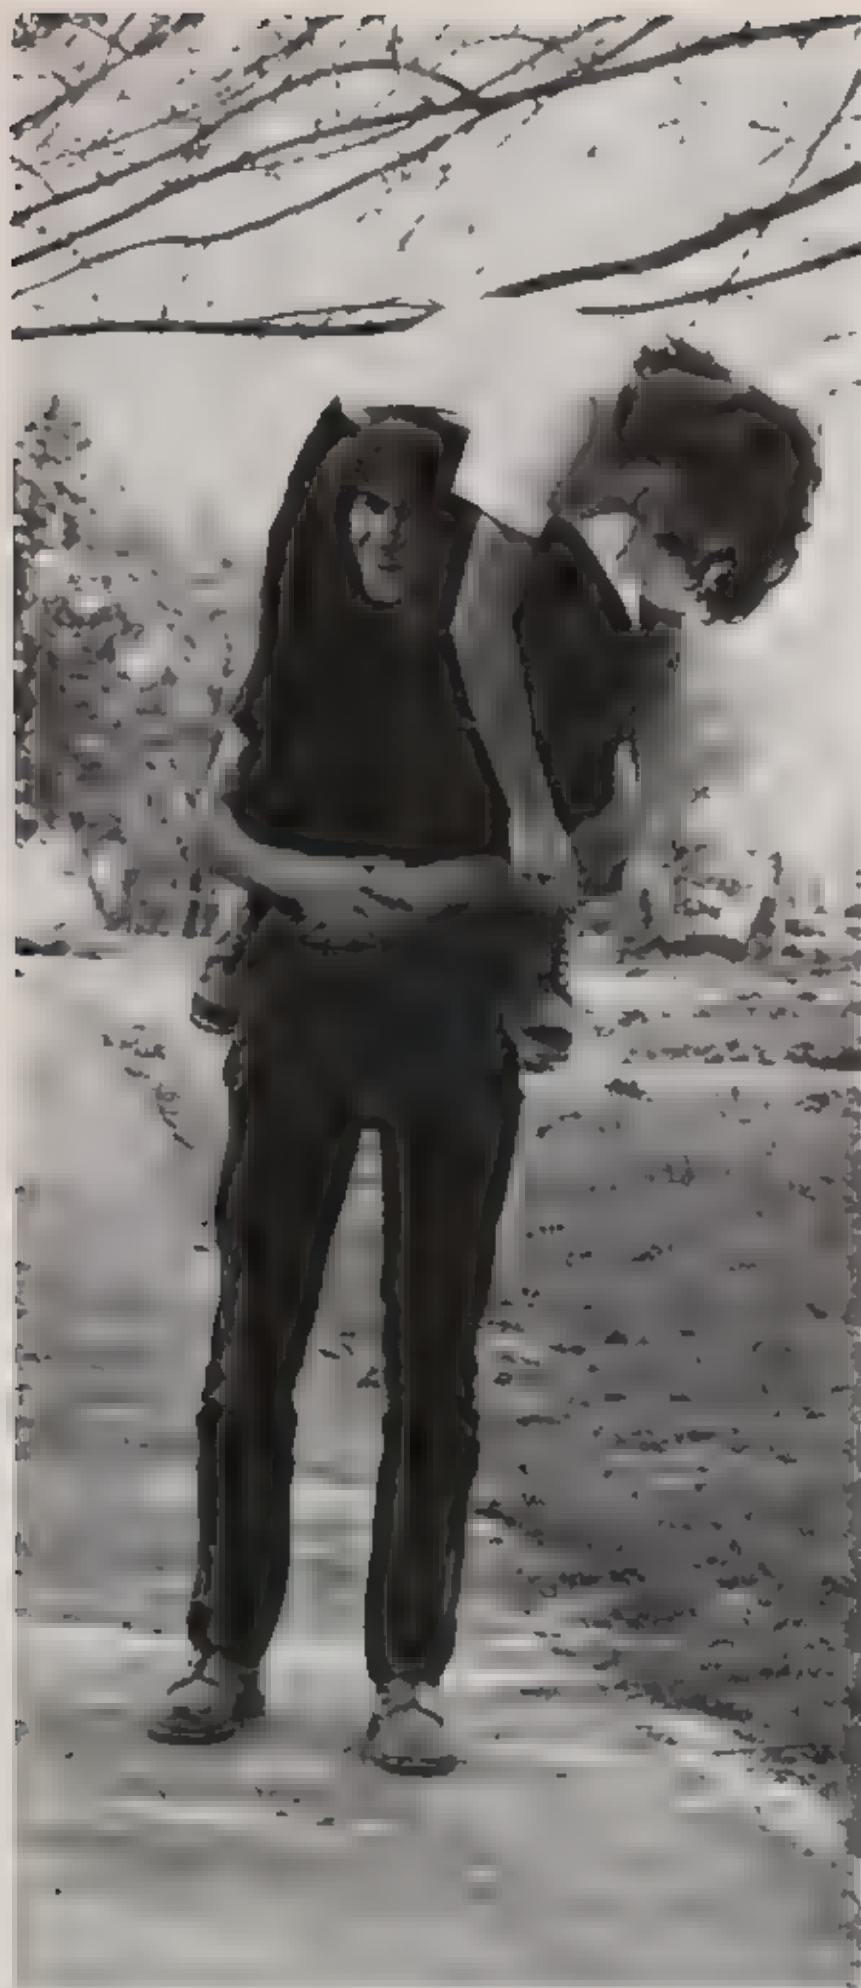

April 1, 1974

Dear

We are pleased to announce that the Board of Directors of the Office of Admissions of the School of Arts and Sciences of the University of Collegeville has accepted your application for enrollment.

Now consider the choices the colleges must make. What's more important — SAT scores, grades, activities, essay question answers, or personality references?

Extremely popular with the colleges this year was the "Waiting List" letter. These letters came with little hope or comfort for those who received them, however.

Walking: for Business and Pleasure

Two marches in April produced funds for Project Concern and the March of Dimes, as well as many blisters and sore muscles. The Project Concern "Walk for Mankind" led Northern Virginians 20 miles through Alexandria and Fairfax. The following weekend, metropolitan area citizens walked 25 miles in and around Washington for the March of Dimes "Walk-a-thon". TC students supported both marches with money and bodies.

Subject for early May: Come to the Cabaret

The Spring musical provided an exciting climax to the school year for the actors, musicians, production staff and all who helped create the brilliant Cabaret. It gave the large audience and packed Saturday night house a taste of Broadway in the professional way it was treated.

Daily rehearsals, nightly rehearsals, long weekend rehearsals, and Spring vacation rehearsals all paid off in the final product.

Juli Cooper, as the Cabaret emcee, helped create an air of excitement, intrigue, pathos and poignancy, while keeping the audience pleasantly enchanted

THE Cabaret came alive with Kit Kat Girls, an all-girl band on stage, dancing waiters, and Jan Chevalier, as Sally Bowles, belting out the title song. The audience saw Cabaret from the point-of-view of Sally's lover, played by Don Beahm. In the background, the Nazi's "Tomorrow Belongs to Me" engulfed the Cabaret and dissolved the romance between Frauline Schneider (Joni Mullany) and the Jewish fruit vendor (Barry Berman)

Jennie Modlin, Juli Cooper, Nancy Ross

The curtain closed as the emcee bid all "Auf Wiedersehn" and the audience knew that it truly had been to the Cabaret.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile came to TC's auditorium during May and took over 180 pints of blood from TC students and faculty. The four service clubs were responsible for the publicity and were proud of the large turnout, which gave TC a few points for its reputation.

At the Student Recognition Night in May, students received awards in every field of study and participation, from Art to SCA. To the parents, the program seemed to go on forever, but the students appreciated the long-awaited recognition for their hard work. A highlight of the evening was the special "surprise" award that Richard Zenith presented to Mr. Larry Trice, as the most dedicated of teachers and club sponsors.

The Alexandria Clergy Association and Senior Class Officers, and Tom Oates, a student at Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria, planned and presented an inspiring Baccalaureate Service. Mr. Oates who attended Harvard and Oxford before entering Seminary, spoke to the graduates about finding their identities. He explained that one can find his identity as a creative and moral person from God, not from being apathetic or joining cliques. Mr. Oates said that the experience of one's identity is found in Jesus Christ and he explained the God-Man relationship in terms of someone trying to rescue a chipmunk from the bottom of a trashcan. A reception in the lobby followed the service.

Almost 600 seniors, friends, and chaperones filled the ballroom of the Quality Inn in Pentagon City for the 1974 Senior Prom. Friends of the Family and Spectrum Limited provided the entertainment, which included current hits like Money, as well as older "goodies" like Stairway to Heaven and Rock Around the Clock. The dance floor was small but cozy, the food exquisite and abundant. Everyone wore fragrant flowers, from the tiny sweetheart roses to enormous

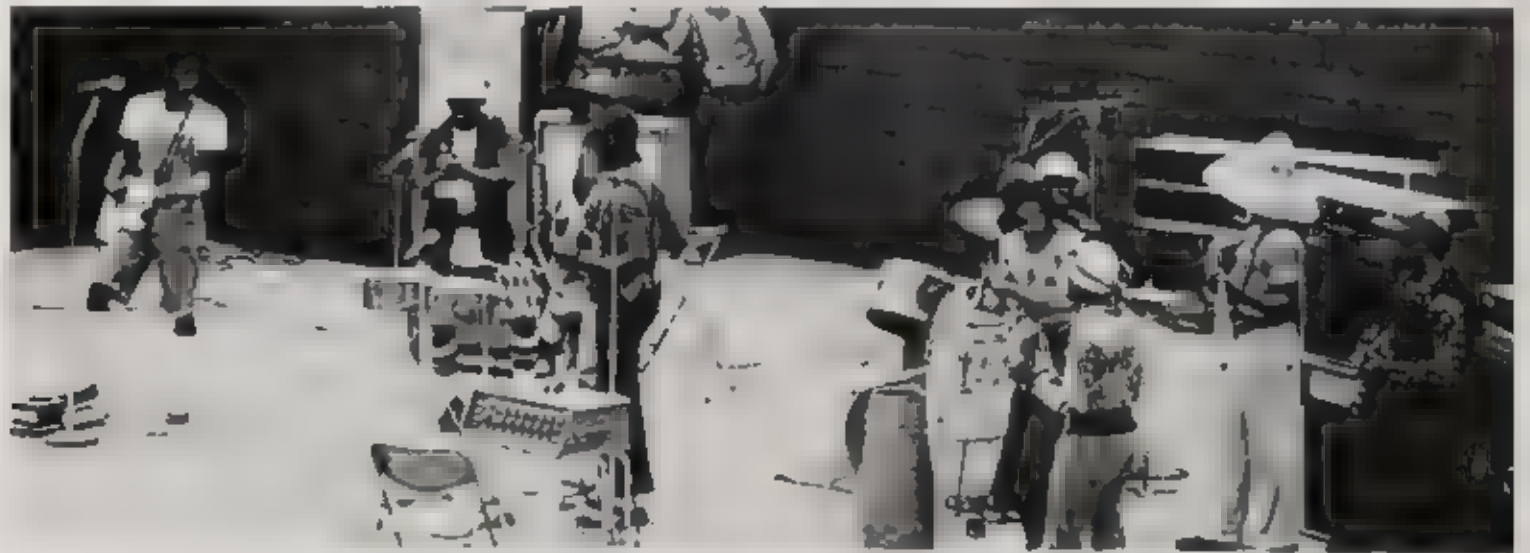

orchids

Flashy gowns in wild styles and bright colors were complimented by stylish tuxes — most in white or blue many in patterned or textured fabrics. Trader Vic's, Jour et Nuit, Portotino and Port O' Georgetown were among the most popular places for intimate dining before the Prom. Most couples doubled for dinner and attended private parties in the early morning hours after-Prom.

Senior Send-off Was Wet and Wild

Following the tradition of Senior Week activities, the Junior Class sponsored a concert in honor of the graduating seniors on the afternoon of the day before graduation. Two bands entertained the group at the Fort Ward Amphitheater until a Spring shower chased the audience back to TC

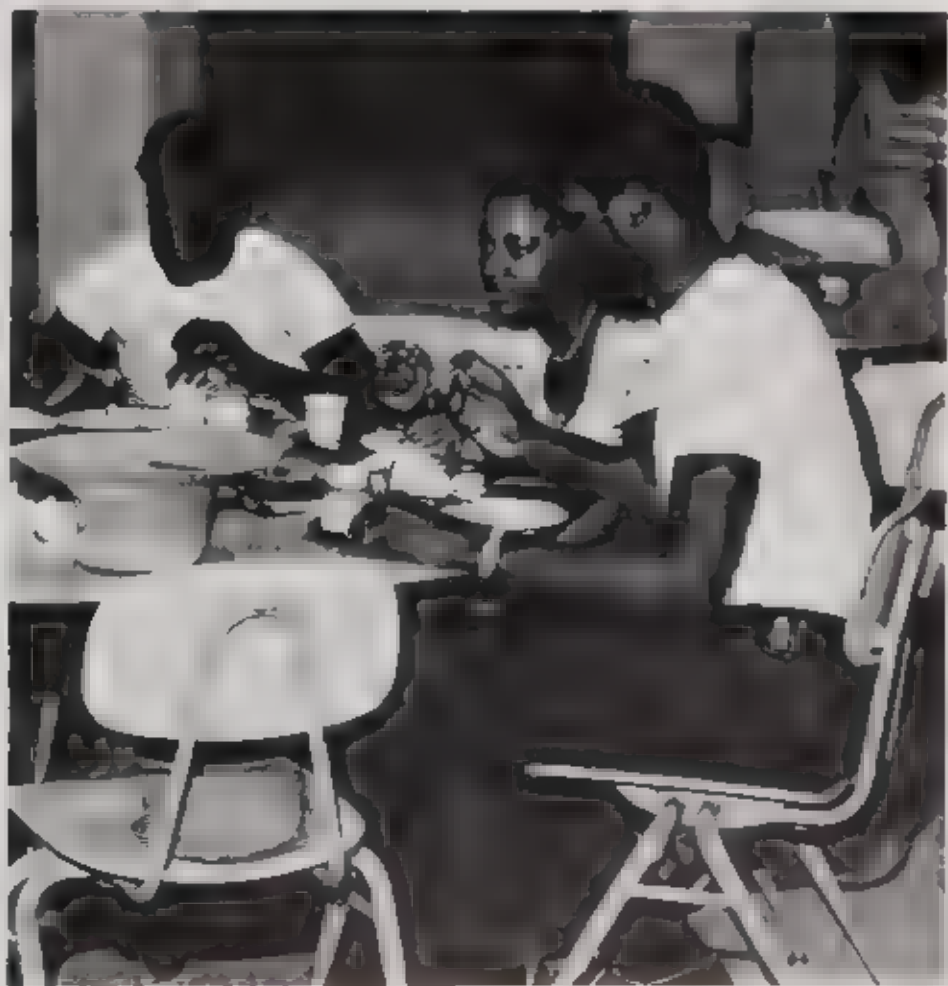

Seniors Scrambled for Breakfast

Orange juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, potatoes, coffee cake and milk were on the menu at the annual Senior Breakfast. A small crowd showed up for the 8 am breakfast, which was the only Senior Week activity exclusively for seniors. The time was spent eating, remembering good times, discussing summer and future plans, and even crying a little.

Glad Grads Flip Lids (After Ceremony)

Tony Hanley and Senior Officers organize graduation exercises

Eight hundred thirteen graduating seniors in shiny red and blue robes proudly received their diplomas at a red, white, and blue, God-Bless-America, thank-you-Mom-and-Dad kind of high school graduation," as The Washington Star-News described the ceremony. Ruth Sanders welcomed the guests with praises of the 1974 Class: "This class . . . has had good clean fun." Later the class gift, a school flag with an insignia like the one on the school rings, was presented to the school.

Leesa Friar, first class speaker, shared her ideas about education and a poem by Walt Whitman. Conrad Kiechel expressed the hope that "each of us has grasped some conception of what it means to be human" and that all would look at the commencement exercises as a beginning, not an end.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford was the next to speak, with an address which started by praising the school and the community. He admitted that just as his son Steve is "kind of embarrassed by the fact that his old man is the vice president . . . (he) is embarrassed by the silly pomp and puffery which some people think should go with the office." Mr. Ford talked about politics, saying that our generation will be the ones to carry on the patterns of peace that are just now being started.

The Vice President received a standing ovation, as did Mr. Tony Hanley, whose speech included a request that we go to our parents and thank them for their encouragement and aid.

Ford Challenges Seniors

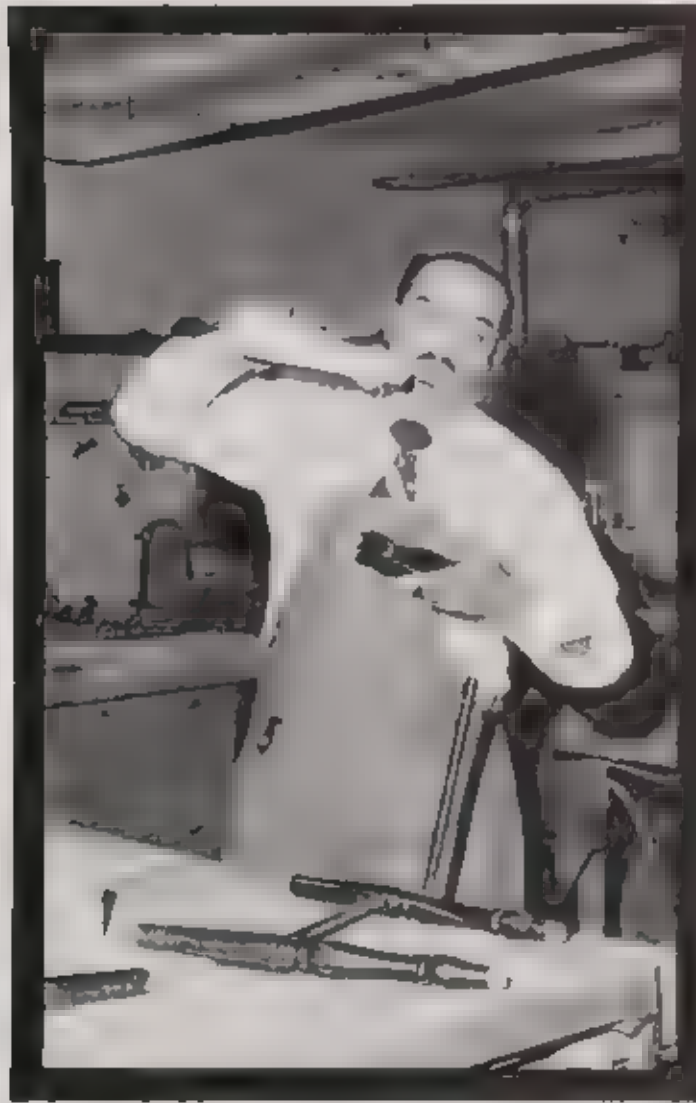

Following the presentation of the diplomas the graduates tossed their mortar boards into the air in ecstasy, but quickly quieted down for the benediction at Mr. Hanley's bidding. Valedictorian John Holcombe and Salutatorian Janice Hodges received medals after the ceremony

Our teachers are vital to the body because they feed and train our individual minds and bodies to be capable to assume the responsibilities that lie ahead. Battered with students' comments (Don't you realize I have other classes, too?) and demands (Sign my eligibility card.), the teachers only occasionally voice their defense "(You all don't believe me now, but some day you'll thank me for this!)".

TO THE CLASS OF 1974.

Congratulations to each of you from the faculty and staff of T.C. Williams Senior High School. We are proud of you for accomplishing the goal of completing high school, and grateful to you for the contribution you have made to this school and community.

But graduation is also a time of challenge, and we know that you will meet the challenge of living productive, meaningful lives, always conscious of the dignity and worth of each individual while working ceaselessly to make this a better world in which to live.

Congratulations and best wishes.

The freedom of TC makes it difficult for the guidance counselors to keep students in class. This is probably the least desirable of their various chores.

Anyone who has ever tried to make a schedule change knows they hate that, too.

Advising students about future plans (college, job, or military service), consoling them on poor board scores, and writing recommendations completes the list of their major jobs. We all admit, "We need guidance."

New Courses on a Semester Basis

Course offerings were at their best this year. From Mr. Beatty's course in TV production to good ol' American Literature, students invariably found what they were interested in.

Movie fans tore through the lines on sign-up day, as Mr. Welsh's classes were rapidly filled.

Bookworms had the opportunity to bury their heads in books, and writers had time to create.

Many had the chance to "find themselves" by taking The Struggle for Identity.

Venturesome students found themselves at home (or away from home) in Mr. Perlman's course as they visited churches, monuments, museums, and the performing arts in Washington, D.C.

The intelligentsia were found in American Civilization classes or in Advanced Placement English. Actually, they were found gathering books from every library in sight, in hopes of beating their classmates to the choice selections

In the American Civilization course, Mrs. Whitworth and Mrs. Derian presented a correlation of American history and American literature on the 11th grade level. Students busied themselves in gathering information for seminars and term papers. Many Am. Civ. students postponed many week end trips because, "The paper is due on Monday

Mrs. Powers taught AP English, and it was advanced, to say the least. At 3:00 a.m. those typewriter keys get a bit fuzzy! With term paper on top of term paper, this was a course where students really earned their grades

ICT — "Progression for Progress"

The Industrial Cooperative Training program offers high school students the opportunity to receive valuable training in one of the many career fields within the areas of trade, industrial, technical, or health occupations.

The program involves a combination of the training resources of both the high school and the technical/industrial complex of the community.

Surveys of former ICT students point out that 65 percent of the graduates of the program are employed in the trades for which they were trained or in closely related occupations.

Few schools in the country offer the kind of science program available here.

For students who feel insecure about science courses, either Applied Physical Science or Physics is just the thing.

For students for whom science comes natural, the choices are unlimited.

An humanistic, non-mathematical course in the basic laws of the physical universe, Physics I and II include study of motion, energy, heat, collisions, sound, light, waves and the atom

Unusual lab equipment is used, such as: lasers, slinkies, ripple tanks, and strob-lights.

Science Spotlight

With the Chemistry and Physics Handbook in one hand and Mr. Kapriva in the other, Mr. Palmer proves that chemists have brain and brawn.

With magnificently equipped laboratories — as good or better than in some colleges — one finds a world of exciting things. Just about anything from keeping a deep-sea salt water aquarium to nuclear particle interactions in a bubble chamber can be done here

Dealing with the material world and the number and combinations of its basic elements, Chemistry treats the ways in which chemicals combine to form the materials which make our world

Students find that the Science Department is a real blast

Classroom discussions on current events become plentiful. Government students work hard to keep up with the Watergate crisis. Vice President says he won't resign and then does. Gerald Ford takes over as 40th Vice President. Middle East problems are finally settled and Kissinger gets Nobel Peace Prize. Last and longest Apollo mission takes place.

Daylight Savings Time starts early, and students find it very difficult to stay awake in 8:15 classes. English students take a brief look at the wedding of Princess Anne and Mark Phillips. The "Exorcist" makes "the Devil made me do it" a haunting reality. A revival of the movie "Romeo and Juliet" lures many to the Center Theatre to see the movie for a first time or for some a fifth or sixth time.

Time was when gas stations gave away glassware and trading stamps to win patrons. Now customers wait in lines for hours, frequently only to be turned away because their tank is over half full or their license plate is even on an odd day. Students and faculty use free periods in often unsuccessful attempts to beat the crowds. Traffic fatalities decrease and Watergate discussions are somewhat terminated as GAS, or lack of it, is the thing on everyone's mind.

The Art Honor Society — A Picture of Talent and Creativity

The purpose of the Art Honor Society is to give recognition to outstanding art students. They are selected on the basis of past experience in high school art, maintenance of an "A" average in art classes, demonstration of exceptional interest and ability in art. The art teachers' recommendation is also required.

The Drama Club is one of the biggest and busiest clubs at T.C. There are approximately sixty members who have paid their dues and actively participate. Professional productions were enjoyed by the group in such notable theaters as the Kennedy Center and the National Theater. Oklahoma was one of the earliest productions the group attended this year. The club supports fellow Alexandria school productions and has numerous bake sales to help bolster the club treasury. Most important of all, the club supports the production of our own shows: "The Man Who Came To Dinner," "Dino," and "Cabaret."

With Pat Spurr's delightful smile, the bake sale was a smashing success.

Cerberus Strives for True Coverage of Year 73-74

Chris Smith and Steve Cuka present a picture of a grave discussion

Ann Bistodeau counts up infrequent yearbook receipts

The small Cerberus staff was a busy one this year, and improvement was our goal. Editors hassled the staff with demands of "a caption under every picture and a headline on every spread." Deadlines were met with seconds to spare, to the relief of Mrs. Kitchen, sponsor. She seemed to think, however, that the staff's favorite method of making layouts was Procrastination.

At this time, the yearbook staff would like to clear up any questions there might be about the name Cerberus. Since few students can pronounce the word, we reasoned that even fewer knew what it meant. Cerberus was the three-headed dog in Greek mythology who guarded the gates to hell. Kinda fits, doesn't it?

Trying to photograph and/or describe all aspects of life at T.C. was not easy, but the editors and staff made special attempts to report truthfully about the year. We therefore submit Cerberus '74 to the body with the hope that though guidance doesn't give us any credit for our work, the students will Theogony, with a staff composed mainly of enthusiastic seniors, brought the news to the students. Student response was much better this year. It was issued free of charge. The staff has had its problems with the printers, but still they managed to bring out 10 issues a year. The staff won a 1st-class rating from the National Scholastic Press Association; the second highest award given.

The Ski Club is organized to promote skiing for interested students. The club took two trips this year, one during the Christmas Holidays and one on a January weekend.

The officers offered encouragement to the faltering skiers and infused the needed spirit. They were as follows: President: Myron Swisher, Vice Presidents: Carl Gruel and Martha Ryder, Secretary: Susan MacIntosh, Treasurer and Sponser: Miss Smith. Although the club meets for only a short time during the year, it does provide students the opportunity to enjoy this popular winter sport as a group.

Fencing Club Takes the Offensive

R. Countz D. Smythka C. Ormes C. Kuchel

Fencing Club is composed of a group of frustrated D'Artagnans. Their purpose is to provide a time and place for those devotees of the sword to come together, practice their art, and match wits and skills.

Their activities are many. In addition to meeting at least once a week, they hope to someday vie with some of the fencing teams of Northern Virginia in friendly competition. There is also a mammoth Trial by Combat Day at the end of school, at which those contesting for the awesome power held by the president meet in not-so-friendly competition. This year's match promises to be another such bloody spectacle.

D. White, C. Barquin, and C. Weeder cheer Tians on

"And we all get together to do the Titan Walk — Hey!"

The '74 cheerleading squad was definitely together — in spirit and body. The twelve girls, led by Captain Carolyn Weeder braved sub-zero temperatures to cheer the Titan football team to victory after victory. The basketball team kept them bouncing and on their toes. Whenever cross country or track were running, cheerleaders were running right behind them with chocolate bars and oranges.

Miss Donley and "her girls" had some good times as well as a lot of responsibilities. Baking goodies, decorating lockers to "psyche" athletes attending banquets, and singing on the bus added to the fun of cheerleading. Wrestling, girls' basketball, and girls' field hockey were also avidly supported by the girls' yells.

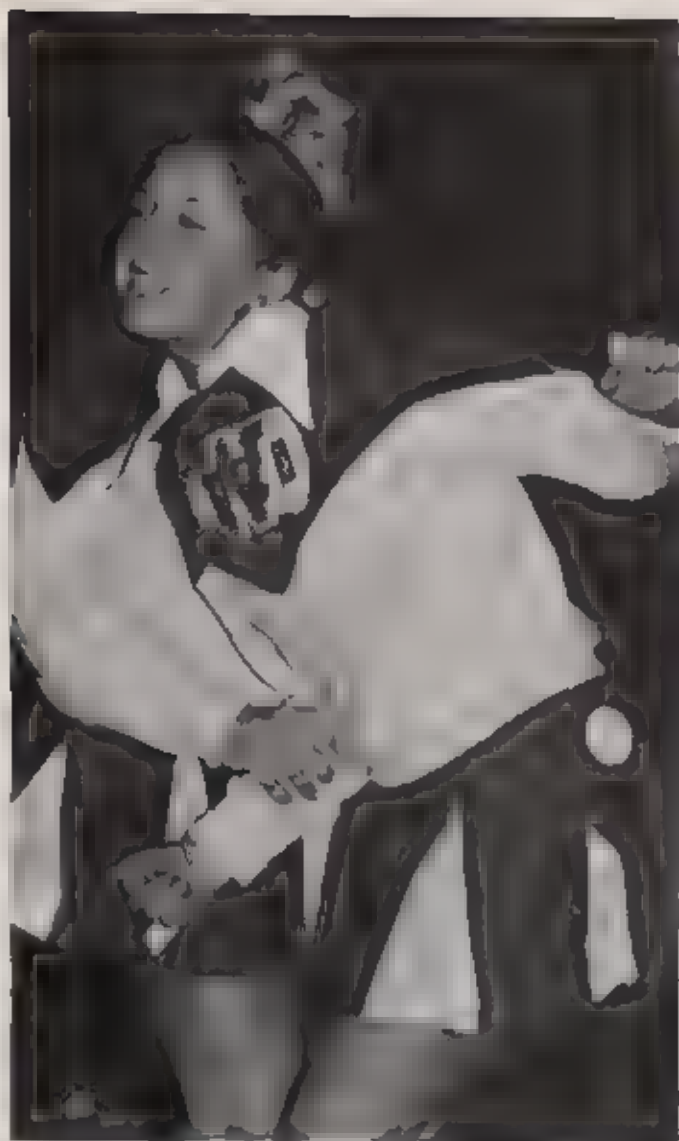

The squad agrees that this was the best year ever. Their togetherness was obvious to many, and it looks as though the friendships formed will last long after the uniforms are turned in.

The Marching Titans worked hard this year to become the best marching unit in the state. Under the direction of Mr. Smith and Mr.

Dahinger, the band performed during half time, thrilling the fans in the stadium.

One doesn't realize that it takes approximately twenty hours of practice to perfect a ten minute half time show. All members of the Marching Titans are quite aware of this! The thrill of winning in competition, as they did, makes it a worth while though.

From September to December, any afternoon between 4:00 and 6:00 you can see and hear these devoted dancers and musicians drilling and re-drilling routines. During the two hours the directors and captains do a lot of yelling at the cold, tired bodies on the field, but that's all part of what makes the marching unit so good.

Without the Stage Band, T.C. would not move and groove together. Whether the tune is Hey Jude or In the Mood, toes tap and hands clap. During 7th period the euphonious sounds escape from the band hall and lure many students to M-1. The group really has it all.

The Pasta Party, a big event for all, was a success, and the band's entertainment was superb. The "Boggie Bash" wouldn't have made it without the stage band's beat. These guys (and gals) are to be commended for their great work.

This year the orchestra performed exceptionally well. They won superior ratings at the District Festival held at Madison High School and eleven performers went on to the All State Symphony Orchestra. The orchestra gave three concerts this year, all praised very highly by the student body.

DECA was involved in many activities. In a basketball game against the WEAM team, DECA raised money for underprivileged children of the area. Bowling tournaments were sponsored and back-to-school picnic was arranged for club members to meet candidates for the election of officers. Their Inner High Gift Shop was a great success. DECA made a good profit which was used for field trips and various other club activities. This also provided students with a good business experience. Members of DECA visit Hammond and GW to discuss their organization.

The club also participated in Vocational Education Week during the week of February 10-16. The success in the various competitions reflects the success of the Vocational Industrial programs at T.C. Williams.

Future Business Leaders Act Now

Members of the Future Business Leaders of America filled the year with activities; They sold trash bags to raise funds for the March of Dimes and sponsored fund-raising drives for various charities by selling candy and having bake sales. They entertained old folks at Goodwin House with Bingo games and competed in a dance-a-thon with local FBLA clubs for the benefit of the March of Dimes.

During March, the FBLA participated in a regional contest which included competition in clerk-typing, stenography, parliamentary procedures, and other business procedures. Winners in this contest go on to statewide and nationwide competition.

Year is a Busy One — Civinettes Prove Help to City

Civinettes is a service club whose prime goal is to raise money for various charities and to provide service for the school and community. A few of their activities around school this year were bake sales, secret pals, bulletin boards, booster buddies with the cross country team and the decoration of the CC team locker room. Some community projects included collecting for ALSAC, see-saw marathon for NARC, more bake sales, singing at an old folks home, monthly baking for the firemen, and the support of an Indian child.

Key Club Committed to Serve

This year the Key Club has performed many useful services. Within our community the club has raised $1000 for the Epilepsy Foundation through a walk-a-thon, aided Kiwanis annual Arts and Crafts show, helped restore houses for the Halfway House Project, collected money for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, and participated in aiding area mentally handicapped children.

Within the school the club has sold programs at all home football games, provided drivers and ushers for the Homecoming Parade, provided ushers for the Homecoming concert, provided aid to all home wrestling matches, participated in all food drives, sold refreshments at home basketball games, and provided guides for College Night.

The purpose of the club is to be involved within the school and community in accordance with strengthening school and the surrounding community. This purpose has certainly been fulfilled.

NHS Recognizes Scholastic Achievement

Membership in this club is dependent upon the individual scholastic record of each participant. It is required that each member have at least a 3.5 grade average. Therefore it is an "honor" merely to be invited into the NHS, which provides its members with information on scholarships, and gives a Christmas party for members of THE Alexandria school board and City Council, and T.C. teachers and administrators. Due to a snow storm in late December, that Christmas party was held in February this year

The Social Environmental Education program consists of a selected group of students interested in people and willing to offer some of their time to help them. These students visit John Adams, Parker Gray, and Minnie Howard in an effort to help eighth graders answer some of their questions about sex, drugs and various other problems encountered. These T.C. students try to help the younger students by setting good examples and rationalizing and discussing how they overcame, in their similar periods of adjustment, the same moral issues and problems.

The Junior Engineering and Technical Society was accepted into the local chapter on September 22, 1966. Starting in the winter of 1973, the JETS built the geodesic dome located by the tennis courts. This year, the dome required much needed repairs caused by storms and vandals. However, this spring a vegetable garden will be started around the dome area. Mr. Palmer, the sponsor, and Robert Coontz, the president, encourage students to try this interesting project. Having a greenhouse at T.C. Williams should be an interesting and rewarding project.

Producers, technical directors, stage managers, assistant directors, and chairmen make up the authoritative side of a major theatrical production. The Man Who Came to Dinner, Dino, and Cabaret required many hours of dedicated, hard work from these individuals and the cooperative persons taking orders. Makeup, sets, costumes, publicity, lights, ushers and backstage hands are the groups composing the crew. These students volunteer in areas of their interests and gain first-hand experience in theater activities. The audience of a play sees only the finished product; with no idea of how many unrecognized yet indispensable people worked for at least six weeks creating the final image.

Perhaps the greatest common bond between individuals of the body is the support for its athletic teams. In the cafeteria at lunch time that support is segregated by sport; there's a separate table for the participants and fans of crew, track, soccer, and baseball. But, of course, the goal of each is to "go to state." Occasionally it seems that winning has become overrated. When city, family, coach, and peer pressure increase, the thrill of being a sportsman decreases. Win or lose, we grow and learn from playing the games

"Those of you gentlemen who want to join a dictatorship, raise your right hands."

The young men who had their hearts set on playing football for Herman Boone and his "Mighty Titans" raised their hands and at this moment the season began.

As always, preparing for the season was as long, grueling, and sometimes as painful a process as the season itself. Each day began precisely at 8:29 a.m. at which time a team meeting was held where objectives of the ensuing day were discussed. At 9:00, it was on to the field. The work began with simple calisthenics, stretching, and limbering-up exercises.

"Make it hurt, make it hurt!" cried Coach Boone. It did just that for ten or fifteen minutes before "practice" began. It consisted of a truly rigorous schedule of agility drills, grass drills, wind sprints (many sprints), and finally 4th quarter drills. The latter would bring havoc and pain to any human body. All this took place under a blazing sun of 90-100 degrees (though it often felt like 200). It was especially hot inside the helmet, a cherished piece of equipment that would not leave the player's head until the day was done. When this painful session was over, all the players would look forward to the "Oh yeah-practice," a spirit-inducing drill that everyone enjoyed. Then came lunch recess!

Another practice, identical to the first, began at 1:30. This schedule of "2-a-days" continued until the group of young men ventured to a place in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, known as Boone's Farm." Here the plan was to earn the title of the "Mighty Titans." After a week there of "2-a-days," the clan of some 60 individuals was molded into one solid unit, and there is no denying that the name was deserved, the "Mighty Titans." Confidence was in the air about opening the season with a victory.

The first game of the season was against Fort Hunt, a tough team that had beaten the Titans only a year before. It was a well-played game but the athletes went back to practice unsatisfied as the score was tied 14-14. Fort Hunt was ecstatic to have done so well, but the Titans felt as though they had "kissed their sister." Tied scores were not up to the standards set by the coaches and players.

After this shaky beginning, the well-oiled Titan Machine began rolling. Opponent after opponent fell victim to the "Mighty Titans." The team had developed into one extremely large family. The members of the team were incredibly close and shared a common goal, winning. A stubborn defense and a productive offense combined to devastate Madison, Oakton, Yorktown, Herndon, and W. & L. by formidable scores. In spite of the impressive record, disbelief still lingered in the minds of some fans, but there was no stopping the effectiveness of the machine itself. It proceeded to knock off Langley and McLean yet to suffer a loss. The Titans weren't the only ones enjoying success, though, and the District Championship rolled around. Undefeated George C. Marshall was the opponent. Marshall was highly favored. Experts predicted that this would be the end of line for the Titans. The players, coaches, and fans had confidence and it proved to be enough as Marshall fell 9-7. There was one more workout before the crucial Regional Championship. In this the last regular season game, Hayfield was crushed 20-0.

Perseverance Pays Off

The 1973-1974 Cross Country team at TCW proved to be a fine group of distance runners. With four fine returning lettermen (Glenn Galer, Jim Kennedy, Gary Wyatt, and Herlt Horton) and some new faces (Bruce Coldsmith, Jim Garner, Pat McKenzie, and David Reese), T.C. developed into a strong distance running team with good depth.

Being a member of the Great Falls District proved to be a challenge to the Titans. The schedule was demanding with defending state champion Marshall High School and always strong Oakton in the same district.

The result was an undefeated dual meet record of 11 wins and 0 losses. The Titans also scored victories in the Great Falls District Meet and second in the Georgetown Invitational. The team continued winning and became Northern Virginia Regional champions on an outstanding performance by the whole team led by Gary Wyatt and Glenn Galer.

Throughout the season Wyatt, Galer, and Kennedy proved fine leaders in providing the Titans with a trio of distance runners close to the top in every race. The finale of the season came in Williamsburg when the Titans finished 3rd in the state championship in another outstanding team effort.

Titans Fall in Regional Final

As usual, since the reorganization of schools in 1971, T.C. dominated the basketball ranks throughout the regular season of play. The Titans had a 17-1 win-loss record falling only to their arch rival, the Spartans of West Springfield. In tournament play the Titans also controlled the show. They swept the district title in 3 games, they were 2-0 in the regional tournament when they were confronted again by West Springfield. The Spartans were victorious and thus ended the season for the Titans.

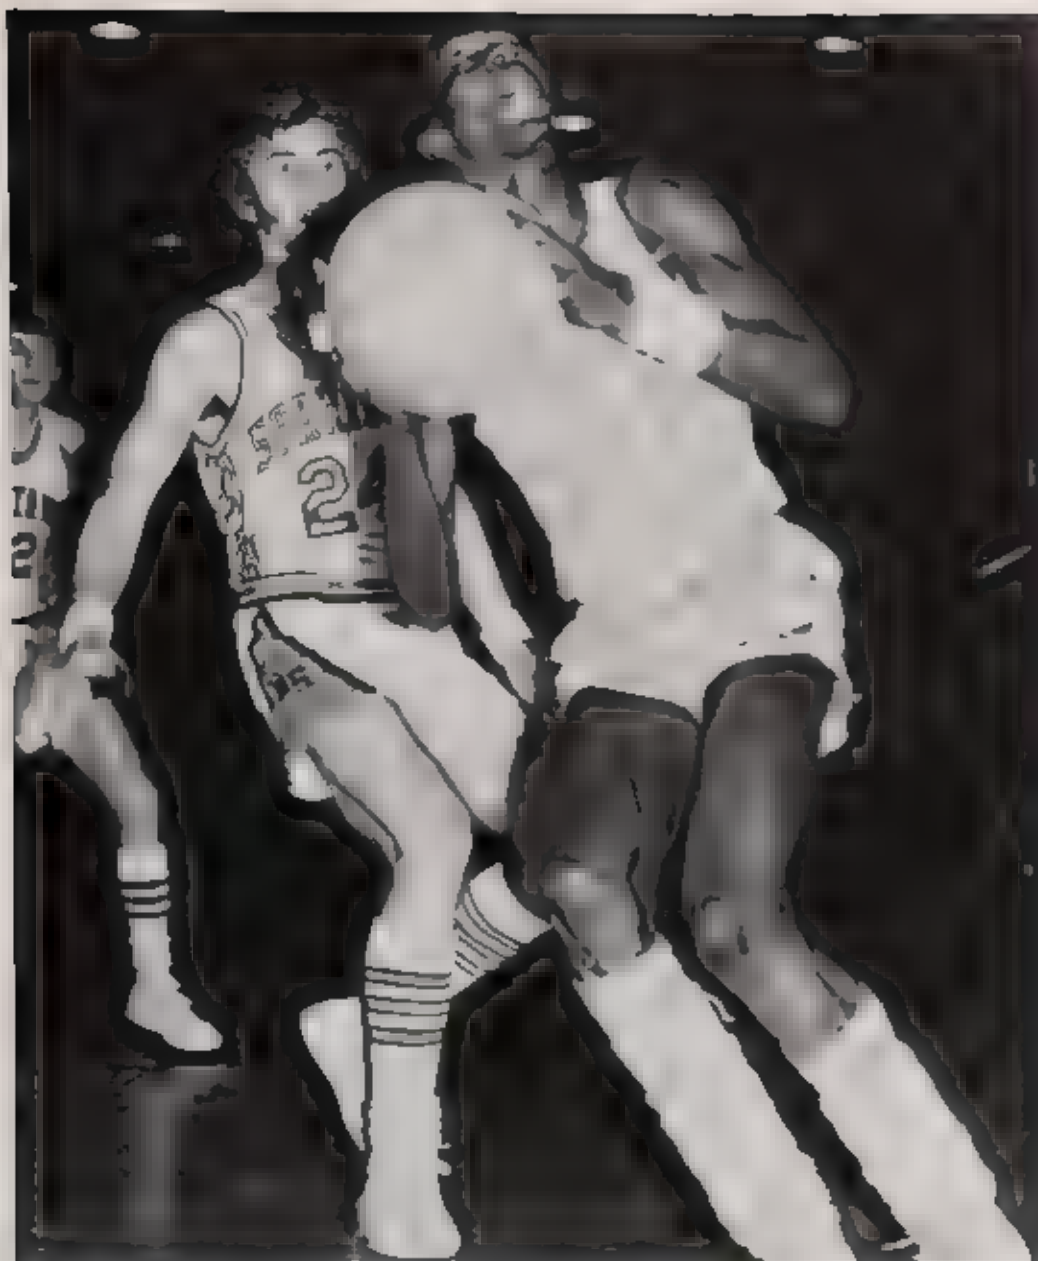

The season opener was against McLean, a team the Titans have historically beaten time and again. The story was the same here, T.C. was boss all the way to plaster McLean 68-54. The next victim was Yorktown, an easy victory at 95-42. The next few games were quite similar as the Titans skunked Oakton, Marshall and Madison all by decisive scores. At this point, the Titans' high-scorer, high-rebounder Carl Jackson was already averaging 25 points and 22 rebounds per game. Then along came a surprisingly strong Herndon team whom the Titans beat by two points, 77-75. The Titans then thwarted Langley, Hayfield and W-L each by 25 points or more. T.C. was growing in popularity all over metro. The team became known for their quick and stubborn defense as well as the playing of Carl Jackson and were ranked in the top 5 teams around Washington. Jackson's average was still climbing, already near 27 points per game. Myron Contee was becoming an essential play-maker; all the Titans were shooting well and the team was working together better than ever before. T.C. rolled over McLean and Yorktown but was almost halted by an improved Oakton team as the Titans squeezed by with a three point margin, 69-66. People all over predicted the next game would be the end of the line for the Titans as Marshall was strong and confident. They didn't even come close though. T.C. 97, Marshall — 61. The next three games were pushovers, T.C. crushing Madison, Herndon and Langley each by more than 20 points.

The season reached its max, the big game was just around the bend — the battle of the undefeateds. The ultimate clash was to come between the Spartans of West Springfield and the Titans of T.C. Williams. In a sell-out crowd of 6,000 seats the fans saw a contest between two nervous, tense, and more sloppy than usual teams, both trying to avoid a physical confrontation similar to the one that had put the Titans on probation one year earlier. The Spartans prevailed on seemingly minor things like rebounds and fouls. The Titans were dejected but bounced back to stomp over W&L by 37 points, 108-71, to finish the regular season. They had a distinct record of 16-0 and an overall record of 17-1. T.C. marched to the Great Falls district title over Yorktown, Oakton, and Herndon. They next confronted Lee and Robinson in the Regional Tournament and defeated each by better than 20 points. Arch-rival time was here again. The Titans wanted to settle the feud for '73-'74 with a victory. Again, before a packed crowd T.C., up by 5 at one point in the 3rd quarter, fell to the Spartans once more — 74-69.

The Titans led the region offensively in regular season play scoring 1593 total points, averaging 88.5 points per game. The team finished with a 45% average on shooting over-all. T.C. outscored their opponents 2126 to 1586, an average of 89-66 per game. As it stands, the Titans will just have to wait 'til next year" to see victory over West Springfield.

The Varsity Wrestling team suffered through a very dismal 3-8-1 season. The poor results were a result of injuries, new coaching, and a failure to have a set lineup. However, the team was by no means a pushover. Losses came against some of the top competition in the state: Lee, Yorktown, Robinson, and Stuart.

Highlights of the season involved a three-match winning streak and the outstanding individual performances of Elmore Kyle (145 lbs.) and Jeff O'Brian (105 lbs.).

Kyle finished third in the district and fourth in the region. This made him eligible to compete in the State Tournament for the second consecutive year. O'Brian posted a perfect 8-0 regular season and finished second in the District Tournament. Wrestlers that qualified for regional competition were Jeff O'Brian (105 lbs.), Steve Love (112 lbs.), Tim Walthall (126 lbs.), Marty Merenda (132 lbs.), and Elmore Kyle (145 lbs.).

After losing four of the best wrestlers in the state through graduation, one might expect a team to be building for the future. This was the case with the Titan wrestling squad. Coach Mike Deathridge sees the future as a bright one. Half of the squad will be returning next year with one season of varsity competition to their credit. With the hope of a stable wrestling program, next year's team will most probably bring a wrestling title to T.C.

Individual Efforts Lead to Team Victories

The T.C. Williams indoor track team opened the season at Williamsburg, Va., at the Holiday Invitational with outstanding performances by Glenn Galer, Gary Wyatt, and Charlie Barlow. Dual meets with O'Connell, Yorktown, and Episcopal proved outstanding for the Titans as they romped over their opponents in fancy style. Sam Parker, Jim Kennedy and Wayne Sanders starred in these winning efforts.

The C.Y.O. Invitational at Maryland U. was a great success for the Titans as they defeated 35 other schools in smart fashion. Sam Parker, a record 2 mile relay and a record shattering 60 yard dash by Charlie Barlow proved too much for the other opponents.

The Titans prepared for the state championships at Lexington, Va., and performed very well. Gary Wyatt led the Titans to a 5th place finish in the state with a state record set in the 2 mile run. Harrison Parker, long jump, also competed well for the Titans in this meet.

Girls Gymnastics End Season with Content

On November 1st the small and inexperienced girls gymnastics team began practicing their first long season. The hard working Frank started the day out bright and early with 6:00 a.m. practices and many comments to keep the workouts going such as "Why are you tired? It's only 6:30 in the morning!"

"Take a nap! Let's go out the gym tomorrow!" or the classic "Please do better than me!"

With tireless coaching of Mrs. Coach Smith the team kept working through several numerous injuries and lack of participation. Her efforts combined with many individual efforts.

Working only once a week with very little support, but many individual accomplishments, the small inexperienced gymnastics team terminated her season on March 16th.

1974 was a great baseball season for T.C. Compared to its usual record, this year was an incredible season for the team. They were Great Falls District co-champions and they tied for third place in the region. The '74 team had 19 team home runs compared to 4 for last year. Steve Douglas was the leading hitter for the team with an average of .424 and Hall Canter averaged second with .311. Gary Sanborn led the team in RBI with 19. The team ERA of 1.08 was the lowest in the entire region. Steve Douglas made the All-Metro team. Rick Vaughn, Robert Hisey, and Steve Douglas made the All-District first team while Hall Canter and Gary Sanborn earned spots on the All-District second team. The highlight of the season was Rick Vaughn's deeply hit against McLean which was almost a home run. The best inning of the season was against Robinson when the team scored seven runs with two outs. The team was even in the eighth and this undoubtedly helped immensely in their leading to T.C.'s first district championship in baseball ever.

The "Champs-to-be" hit the boathouse after a rough practice

The 1974 crew season was a combination of winning, losing and learning. The Titans fielded a large team at the National Championships, but managed to capture only one title.

This year's Varsity 8 lacked the experience of last season's national champions. Trouble getting a set line-up due to injuries and eligibility cost the eight two races. On the more optimistic side, the eight avenged last year's loss to Ridley and some oarsmen won more races this season than they had in their entire high school careers.

The lightweighters were a group that had been together for four years. They went through the problem of keeping down their weight almost stoically without complaint. In the Northern Virginia Championships they surprised many by coming from behind to win the cup.

Underclassmen composed the major portion of the fours and pairs. They had an excellent record considering how little racing experience they had had. Next year they will be counted on to anchor the Varsity-8.

The first year of girls' participation in rowing at T.C. Williams can only be termed as very successful. Throughout the season the girls seemed to be close to putting it all together but could never quite do it, until the most important race, when they won the National Championship. They were the only crew from Northern Virginia to win a race at Nationals.

Several boats surpassed all expectations while some did not do as well as they were expected to. With all things taken into account it was a good season with many rewarding team advances.

With a team of three seniors and three juniors, the TCW golf team was a vast improvement over last year's team. Led by Joe Holt, Jim Volkert, and Paul Tideman, the Titans finished with a 5-4 record, third out of nine teams. The Titans lacked depth early in the year but came on strong to win five of their last six matches. The team got better each week as the 4th, 5th, and 6th men improved. Filling these spots were Artie Quate, Randy Dietz, and Myron Swisher. The Titans' first three men, of relatively equal talent, can compete with almost anyone in the state. The team should have a good shot at the district and regional titles.

Soccer Takes It All:

In the spring of 1973 the soccer team sported a 6-2-3 record and finished third in the Northern Region. Not bad for T.C.'s 3rd year of soccer! However, they had expected to take the region that season because they had a great team with many outstanding individuals.

Looking to the following season Coach Pisciotta knew that he would have only four returning lettermen, Keith Howard, goalie; Alfonso Torres center halfback, Bob Hanback halfback, and Luis Barahona attacker. It was from this point that the 1974 season success story began.

Championship teams don't just happen they are made. A lot of planning, hard work, determination and desire-to-win put it all together. Coach Pisciotta was very pessimistic at the beginning of the season and was ready to chalk up the year to rebuilding, but he had some hope. He began an all-out recruitment campaign for junior varsity and varsity players and things started to look a little better. The returning seniors were now joined by outstanding freshmen Eduardo Lopez, Davis Lewis, Ian Keller, and Joe Smellow as defensive halfbacks and fullbacks. Juniors Carlos Claudio, Luis Bascope, Mike Whibley, and sophomores Blake Crowe and Russell D'Sa helped make up the offensive attack positions. Now this was a team!

In pre-season scrimmages with Hayfield, Lee, R. Hunt, and Stuart the Titans were out numbered 2-1 on the bench and their opponents were convinced that continual substitutions would easily run the Titans. To their surprise the Titans were conditioned and well trained and controlled the games, losing none. Goalie Keith Howard conceded only one goal per match in pre-season. He allowed fewer goals in the season than any goalie in the region. Keith looked good, he was sure of himself as a goalie and he proved to be a real team leader.

Based on the pre-season matches the newspapers were ranking the Titans as "contenders," "possibles" and "top choice." They trained hard and mastered new skills, techniques, and tactics. Coach Pisciotta implemented a new system called the 4-4-2 Powerhouse. It sounded good and he had the personnel to make it work. He tried it and it was successful. The first four matches went into overtime periods in which the Titans came out the winners. The first blemish of this season came when the team visited Marshall. They were leading in the fourth period with three minutes left on the clock, the referee called a hand ball foul in the penalty zone. A penalty kick was taken and Keith made a "fantastic" diving save. One minute later the foul was repeated. This time the opponent made good his attempt and the game ended in a 1-1

Goalie Keith Howard, who allowed only 7 goals in 10 games, does his thing while playing a major role in the Titans march to the championship, in semi-final game against Stuart.

The Junior Varsity, who finished with a highly respectable 8-1-0 season record, the best in the region, promise a good future for Varsity Soccer at T.C.

The Varsity Tennis Team was without a coach until the middle of March this year, the courts were in miserable disrepair, and prospects for the season seemed rather dismal.

Despite these setbacks the team did phenomenally well. Opening against Wakefield, the Titans cruised by 6-3. The next match saw the Titans slip by Langley 5-4. The Titans then went on to crush Oakton and Madison by scores of 8-1 and 6-3. Now 4 and 0, T.C. was a surprising tennis powerhouse in everyone's book. Next to challenge the Titans was the team from Bishop Ireton whom T.C.aced 6-3. The biggest match of the year so far was just around the corner, against Marshall, who planned to finish ahead of the Titans in the District. T.C. vanquished the Statesmen 6-3. Another tough team (out of district this time), Jefferson, made a surprisingly strong showing as the Titans squeezed by them 5-4. Still amazing everyone with their undefeated record (7-0) the Titans had one more opportunity to prepare for the biggest match of the year. Herndon was the next victim who fell to T.C. 6-3. It should be noted that many of the victories were greater than the scores indicate since, if ahead significantly, Coach Evans would make substitutions in the line-up to give those who didn't play much the opportunity. Herndon was a prime example. The big one was here. Yorktown, undefeated in over 70 regional matches, was the Titans next opponent. Although very mentally ready, T.C. still fell to the Patriots 8-1. Another tough team was next on the roster, W&L. The Generals were not supposed to be as difficult as Yorktown, but they were, and shut out the Titans 9-0. T.C. bounced back against Wakefield again 6-3, but fell to McLean and Bishop Ireton because Coach Evans saw fit to play some of the less experienced players.

Despite four losses, T.C. had as good, if not better, a team than ever before. The Titans faced some stiff competition this year and fared very well in the long run. Learning from mistakes, and added experience, should make the team championship material next year.

This year's Softball Team had a very good record compared to last year's team. June Frinks, the star pitcher, displayed good form throughout the season. FOR AWHILE, it looked like T. C. Williams was going to win its own and capture the Great Falls District baseball championship.

Scholastic Crews Race

By RANDY SAUNDERS
Executive Sports Editor

THE NORTHERN VIRGINIA crew season gets off to its official start tomorrow morning with the rowing of the Cherry Blossom Regatta off the Potomac Boat Club above Key Bridge.

Oarsmen from the seven Northern Virginia rowing schools as well as a contingent from Upper Marion, Pa., and LaSalle of Philadelphia, will row off at 9 a.m. to open a 12 race schedule. The start of the morning's events has been delayed by an hour, according to host Washington-Lee's coach Charle Butt, to accommodate the arrival of the Pennsylvania groups.

EXPECTED TO

HIGHLIGHT the racing card will be the varsity eight contest pitting perennial local powers T. C. Williams and W-L against an improving Fort Hunt eight and a boat from LaSalle. The regatta will conclude with that race and is expected to row off at approximately 11:30 a.m., according to Butt.

The Titan varsity eight oarsmen are coming off a strong performance last weekend at Marietta, Ohio, where they rowed a rapid flowing 1,500 yard Muskingham River course in under four minutes. T. C. coach John Ferriss believes "it should be a pretty good contest."

W-L LOST TO STUART by less than a boat length in a head-to-head race last Friday, and is expected to be strong all spring. Ferriss said, "I think last year LaSalle and W-L were about even," perhaps indicating the anticipated closeness of the confrontation. Fort Hunt, too, is expected to have a strong contingent on the river coming off an impressive success over Yorktown last week.

After last week's narrow victory, Stuart should have its hardest time breaking a sweat against Yorktown and Upper Marion in an earlier varsity eight heat.

FERRISS IS LOOKING for a good, fast race in his heat tomorrow. "I hope everybody's close together," he said, meaning that all four boats are lined up in the middle of the river. "In lanes one and two you get some pretty still water," he explained, then added, that coach Butt "knows the river and he's pretty fair when it comes to putting the boats in the water."

As for the Titan's chances of winning the varsity heat, Ferriss is encouraged. "The crew has begun to pick up speed," he said. "Right now, they've made a good deal of improvement. They're doing a pretty good job now," says Ferriss, then adding, "I think they've figured out that the harder they pull, they can make the boat go that much faster."

BUTT IS SOMEWHAT perplexed by the performance of his alignment. They were horribly by P freshman eight ago, he said ("We of character that came back last narrowly lose to

College — and job-hunting, school spirit and senior slump, term papers and ball games, club meetings and parties; all are part of the thrills which belong to the graduating class. There are two different attitudes (and mixtures of them) one can have towards his final year of high school. While some seniors seek to enjoy every minute they have while still in high school, others wait quietly sure to blossom after they leave TC and are out in the whole wide world. Which ever is the case, it's certain that each will miss his friends and possibly a few aspects of this year when they are gone from him. We go in peace, with tears and smiles

Senior Officers and Sponsors Lead The Way For a Successful Year

Senior Board: "Where's the prom going to be this year?" "Oh, probably in the cafeteria." "We need money!" "Alright you guys, cool your jets." "How about if at the next meeting the whole senior board meets — not just the officers?" "This talent show could be great — if we could only find some talent!"

Just a few comments to be heard at any one of the Board meetings. With the hard work of the officers, everything went off well. The class of 1974 has always been a good class, they only needed the time and effort to have something tangible to show for it. And yet, as we look back at the disappointments and disagreements of the year, we can truly say that it was worth it. "Whew, thank goodness that's over with!"

Senior Portraits, Caps & Gowns, Senior Keys, the Senior Talent Show, and the Prom are all part of the thrills of being a senior. The activities were spread throughout the year, building on each other to create the right mood for graduation. Seniors lost the privilege of getting out of school a week before the juniors, but many observed the tradition regardless.

The Happier Side of Senior Life

"We're the ultrabrite crowd," shine Mary Cahill, June Walker, and Ann Marie Rinaldi.

"You want me for the centerfold?" asks Mike Hughes.

The Class of '74 is blessed with memories of what it was like to be a 'Baby Titan', of the close atmosphere of the old Hammond, or of the "good old days" at GW. It took three years, but we are finally conquering the prejudices of school background. The barriers are coming down as it becomes increasingly harder to tell who was a Prexie and who was an Admiral.

The Senior Class, united as Titans, has grown to be a close group, considering their former estrangement. Yes, we continue to hold fond memories of the traditions that helped keep the four-year high schools alive, and it's hard to create traditions with former rivals.

We've come a long way, and we'll never forget the rough times we've shared; but accomplishments stand out among those times: expanded educational and vocational opportunities, athletic teams far superior to most, and the famed "Open Campus." But most of all, think of all the friends we've made!

"You think we look innocent enough?" wonder Bruce Coldsmith, Sara Bakke, Max Witkin, and Joyce Hoffman.

When do we get out of here?

Suzy Saffelle displays her home economics talent

Though we couldn't wait to get away from high school, we seemed to feel a need to live "action-packed minutes and days, especially that last semester. Whether busy with sports club meetings, music, jobs, or parties, many of us didn't have enough time for all our extra-curricular activities, let alone our homework. Some teachers were sympathetic, but others nobly tried to prepare us for the big, bad years ahead

How many poeple know that the yearbook they bought for $8 actually cost $13 to make? Where does the other $5 come from? The blood, sweat, and tears of selling those all-important ads. That's why they are the backbone of the yearbook

The Cerberus has very few patrons this year because of lack of participation. The Cerberus staff would like to encourage more participation in the future, both by patrons and purchasers. Patronage of the yearbook is essential in its production. We urge increased interest in the yearbook monetary and not so. Only those who support the book benefit from it. The editors of the Cerberus would like to thank all those who bought books and those who donated their time, energy and patience toward its production especially Mrs. Kitchen and the staff. We would also like to thank the student body, faculty, staff and administration of T.C. for giving us the stuff of which yearbooks are made people.

Where Do We Go
From Here?

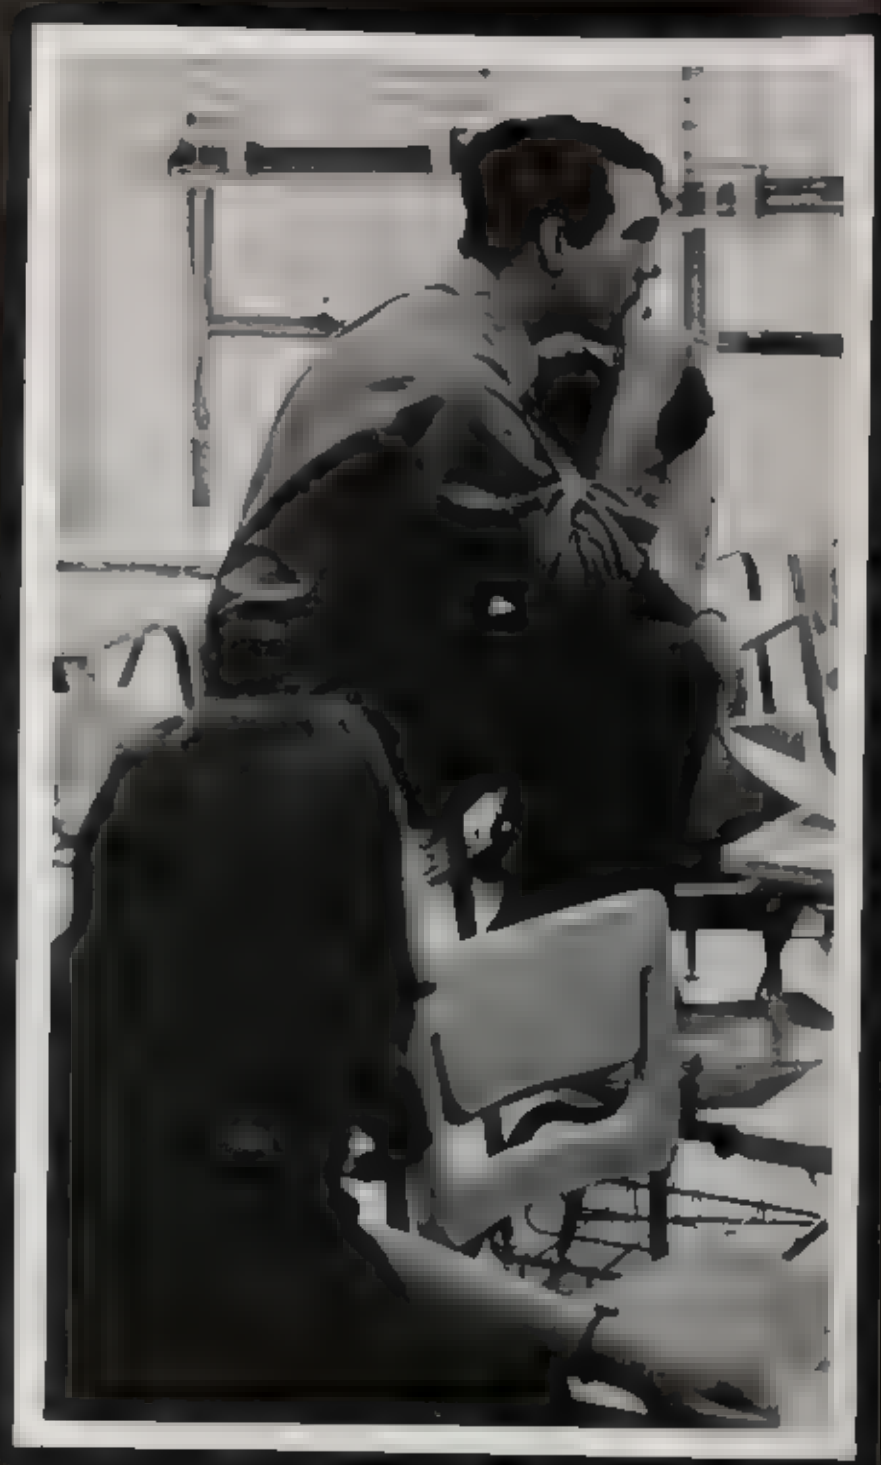

Many area high schools think the body of F.C. Williams High School is extremely large in comparison with their own — a giant in fact. Have all the many and varied parts worked to the best of their abilities to make 1974 a successful year? The Cerberus staff, being just a small part of the body, has chosen not to pass judgment on the success of the year for the entire body; but rather to raise some questions for the parts to use in their own evaluations of this school year.

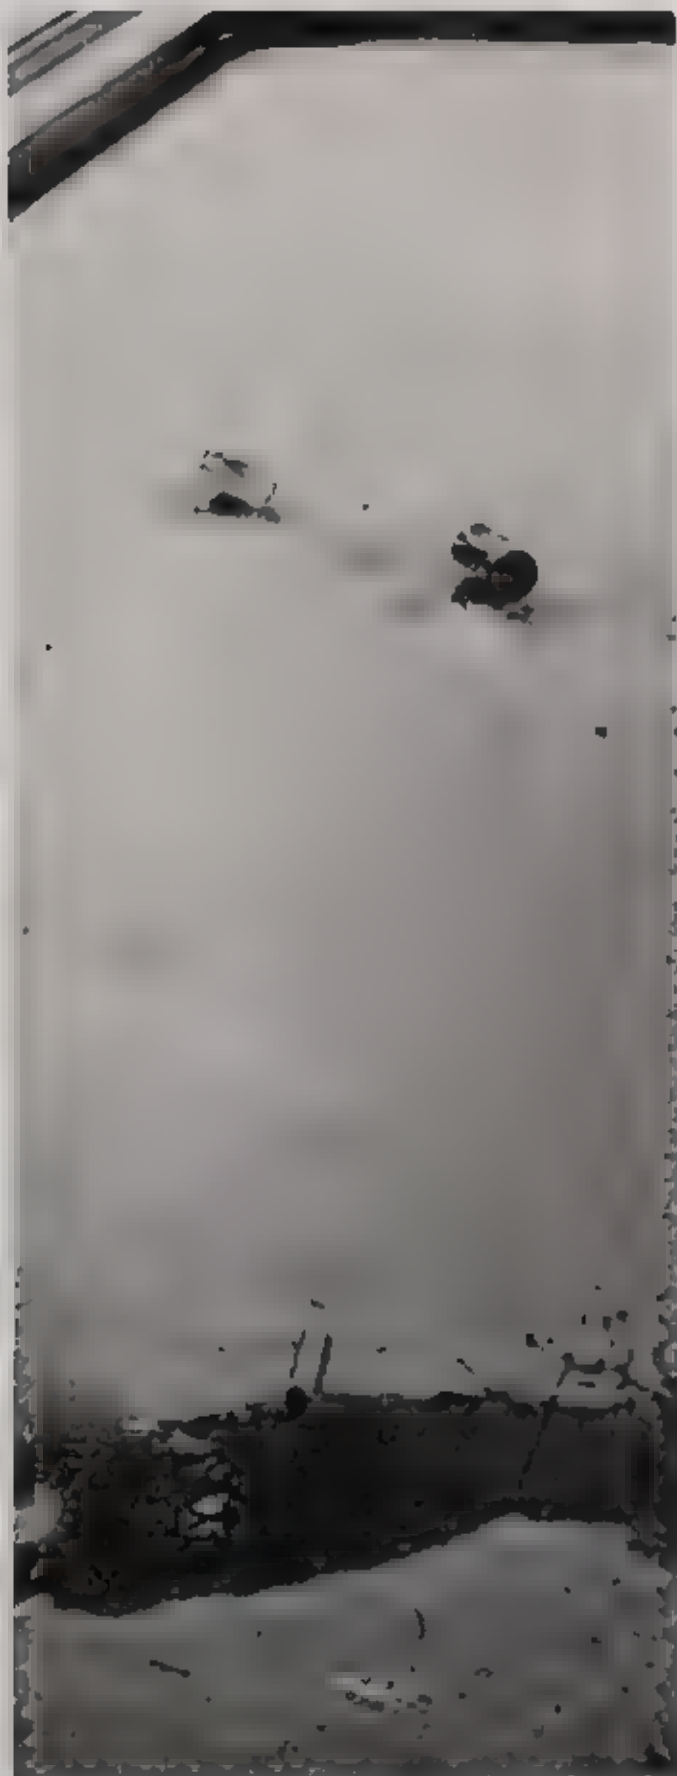

Have we shared with one another?
 Have we worked together?
 Have we co-operated?
 Have we compromised for the good of all?
 Have we earned praise and honor in the name of the entire body?
 Have we really communicated with one another?
 Have we acted as friends?
 Have we been friends?

Have we suffered?
 Have we made progress?
 Have we learned to cope with situations that cannot be changed?
 Have we made any effort to change those situations which we have found are in need of alteration?
 Have we looked for the good that comes out of the unfortunate times?
 Have we learned from our mistakes?

Have we defined ourselves?
Have we discovered our purpose?
Have we established our goals?
Have we come to recognize ourselves within the body?
Have we learned to relate physically, mentally, socially, and emotionally to the others in the body?

Have we deepened our insights?
Have we widened our range of interests?
Have we discovered and used our special talents and skills?
Have we worked to perfect our individual abilities?
Have we prepared to make use of our knowledge?
Are we ready for the future?
